

The U.S. Travel Association reported that unused vacation time is at a 40-year high with many employees remaining in the office instead of using their vacation days. People are working longer hours and skipping vacations to the tune of nearly $5 billion dollars in paid vacation time annually. Trying to keep up with growing business demands, technology problems, and the day-to-day operations of your business can cut into time you would normally spend lounging on the beach or relaxing at a resort. Business IT Support can reduce the burden experienced by business owners, managers, and employees, improving both their business and their quality of life.

Here are four ways managed services with Just Call the IT Guy is the Business IT Support you need to improve efficiency and your teams' quality of life:

1. Keep More Money in Your Pocket

When you switch from break-fix IT services to a flat rate business IT support solution, you can budget more accurately for your IT expenses. You know exactly how much you're paying each month, eliminating the immediate need to come up with large sums of money to hire a technician in the event something breaks. When you spend less on IT expenses, you'll have more money to take that vacation – or at the very least, stress less – to contribute to a better quality of life.

“Trying to keep up with growing business demands, technology problems, and the day-to-day operations of your business ... ”

2. Increase Business Efficiency

When your business technology is running and working the way it should, your employees can work at their full potential. Not only does down time cost your organization financially, it also costs your employees their productivity! Business IT Support services are proactive – meaning your organization will be operating at peak efficiency and collaborating effectively.

3. Enjoy Peace of Mind with 24/7 Security

Just Call the IT Guy's Business IT Support services provides our clients with the dedication of an expert IT team – but without the expense of hiring an in-house tech team. You can rest easy knowing when you and your employees go home for the night or finally take that well-deserved vacation – your network is protected. We monitor your network around the clock and address issues before they become problems, while providing help desk services and ongoing support for a flat rate.

4. Focus Your Resources on Business Growth

Having a fully staffed IT department is expensive. While larger companies may have the funds needed to support an in-house IT department, small businesses usually don't have access to those kinds of resources. Without an IT department, They're left to struggle with the day-to-day needs of their technology and handle emergencies by themselves. Managed IT Services is an affordable, reliable option for smaller businesses with smaller IT budgets. Companies utilizing Managed IT Services can refocus company revenue on the resources that encourage business growth, such as marketing, hiring experienced employees, and improving customer service.